

Abstract of Invention

A method for promoting the selection of an item to a predetermined type of consumer. The method includes the steps of determining representative activities of the predetermined type of consumer, determining representative uses of the item by the consumer during the representative activities, and creating demand for the item by the consumer based upon one or more of the representative uses of the item by the consumer during the representative activities.

20

25

30